Hancock Co. supers aim to keep Gulf Coast Mental Health open

Will meet next Monday to discuss how to help deficit

Hancock County officials said Monday they were as shocked as everyone else when they learned last week that Gulf Coast Mental Health planned to close its doors.

The Gulf Coast Mental Health Board of Directors last week sent letters to the Hancock, Harrison, Stone and Pearl River County boards of supervisors that all its facilities would close in August due to a $5 million billing deficit. Officials said the agency apparently did not send bills for or collect around $5 million in payments from Medicaid, Medicare and private insurance over the course of the past year or more.

"For the past 15 years, Gulf Coast Mental Health has certainly played an important role in our community," Hancock County Board of Supervisors President Blaine LaFontaine said this week. "We received a letter (last) week regarding the closure and we started asking questions about the audits."

Hancock County Administrator Eddie Favre represented the county at a Coast-wide meeting in Gulfport on Monday to discuss possible solutions. At that meeting, the Mississippi Department of Health announced it would advance $1.5 million to the agency from the 2020 fiscal year budget -- 50 percent of its annual allo-

The summer-long festival fun continued in Hancock County over this past weekend, with the third annual Hemingway Festival at the Waveland Ground Zero Museum and the annual CASA of Hancock County Poker Run in Bay St. Louis.

This year's Hemingway Fest theme was "Roaring '20s in Paris." Organizers said the turn-out for this year's event on Friday and Saturday was "fantastic," bringing dozens of people to Coleman Avenue to enjoy a "Moveable Feast," a Hemingway look-a-like contest, "best-dressed" awards, and the "Bull Run."

Proceeds from this year's HemFest will support an oral history project focusing on capturing the colorful memories of the residents from Waveland and nearby communities.

The CASA of Hancock County Poker Run took place Saturday, with Dan B's in Old Town Bay St. Louis serving as the central headquarters.

"The Poker Run brings foot traffic to local businesses, raises money for CASA and gives people the space to have fun with a purpose," CASA Executive Director Cynthia Chauvin said. "It's really a win-win for everybody. ... It's so humbling to see so many people 'all in' for CASA."

Bay teen readies for AmeriCorps service

19-year-old Taylor Rabelais is heading to Sacramento, California to join AmeriCorps National Civilian Community Corps for 10 months.

BY CASSANDRA FAVRE
STAFF WRITER

Next Wednesday, 19-year-old Taylor Rabelais of Bay St. Louis is embarking on a 10 month journey with the AmeriCorps National Civilian Community Corps.

Back in May, Rabelais graduated from Bay High School, but said she immediately knew that the college route was not for her.

"I'm not really good at school, it was a struggle," she said. "I didn't want to waste money on college."

Rabelais' aunt, Cathy Pitolo, who works at the Hancock Resource Center, knew of something that would be right up Rabelais' alley.

"I was at training in Hattiesburg and sat in on a class with representatives from AmeriCorps," Pitolo said.

As a non-profit, the Hancock Resource Center can apply for volunteer services through AmeriCorps.

According to the AmeriCorps' website, "AmeriCorps is a network of national service programs, made up of three primary programs that take a different approach to improving lives and fostering civic engagement. Members commit their time to address critical community needs like increasing academic achievement, mentoring youth, fighting poverty, sustaining national parks, preparing for disasters, and more."

AmeriCorps is open to adults ages 18-to-24-years old, Rabelais said.

"Taylor is skilled in so many areas and I shared the information with her," Pitolo said. "She was accepted and will work with FEMA."

According to the AmeriCorps' website, FEMA teams are "deployed wherever the need is the greatest," and "members are trained in one or more of FEMA's mission-critical functions."

Rabelais will be heading to AmeriCorps' campus at the McClellan Air Force Base in Sacramento, California for three weeks of training. Once that is completed, she will be assigned to a team and wait for an assignment.

While she is there, the

MDOT urges residents to plan for hurricanes

SEA COAST ECHO

Hurricane season is officially underway and the Mississippi Department of Transportation (MDOT) is urging South Mississippi residents to prepare now.

“Hurricane season is well underway and the time to prepare is now; don’t wait until a storm is being tracked to start putting a plan together,” said Commissioner Tom King, Southern Transportation District. “When preparing for a hurricane, it’s important to have an evacuation plan for when the time comes.”

Long-time residents should reevaluate their hurricane plans, especially the evacuation route. State Route 57 has been removed from the list of official evacuation routes because of a bridge replacement in Jackson County. The official evacuation routes can be found in MDOT’s 2019 Hurricane Evacuation Guide.

The 2019 Hurricane Evacuation Guide is an essential resource and just a click away. Order a free copy today at GoMDOT.com/hurricanes. Guides are also available in Spanish and Vietnamese. Also available are children’s hurricane activity books, state maps, and more.

The guide features information to assist in developing a preparedness plan such as evacuation routes, contraflow information, radio coverage areas through Mississippi Public Broadcasting and important contact information from the Mississippi Highway Patrol, American Red Cross, Mississippi Emergency Management Agency and bordering state DOTs and highway patrols. Individuals and families will find vital information about shelters, pet care, lodging and travel resources.

Residents should plan where to stay in the event of an evacuation. Hotel rooms near the evacuated areas may not be available, so residents are encouraged to plan to stay with family or friends not in the affected area when possible. Also, residents should let family, friends and neighbors know their evacuation plans.

That way it will be easier to get in touch with them if needed.

Randolph speaks on the history of electric street lighting in Hancock Co.

BY JAMES KEATING MD CONTRIBUTING WRITER

James Randolph was the featured guest on Thursday at the Historical Society’s monthly luncheon at the Kate Labrano House. Randolph spoke about his multigenerational family history in Hancock County and the advent of electric street lighting in Bay St. Louis.

James Randolph reports that his grandfather, William Randolph (1850 – 1938), came to Hancock County in 1893 from Jasper, Arkansas in a wagon with two good mules. He initially worked for the R.J. Williams Lumbar Company located several miles outside of Bay St. Louis in Bayou Lecroix on the Jourdan River. In 1903 he moved to Bay St. Louis to work as a deputy sheriff and tax collector.

In 1904 A.L. Stokoe of Jeanerette, LA bought the Gulf Coast Ice and Manufacturing Company that produced lights and ice for $6,000. He changed the name to the Bay St. Louis Ice, Light, and Bottling Works adding manufacturing of soda and summer drinks. The company had a privately run electric plant which was a small engine operated generator of 415 kilowatts.

In 1904 A.L.Stoke employed William Randolph to be his company electrician and install 120 street lights in Bay St. Louis. William Randolph also installed and maintained the three generators with the ice plant and bottling company. Small towns and timber mills in this era required their own home grown electricity from plants with relatively small generators.

It would not be until 1938 that the Coast Electric Power Association would be organized to provide private homes and rural farmers in Hancock County with electricity at reasonable rates through this nonprofit investor-owned company. The advent of electricity to Hancock County promoted dairy farming in the mid twentieth century.

The speaker, James Randolph, is a decorated US Marine Corps veteran of the Korean and Viet Nam Wars. His father, Chester Randolph, was a decorated World War I veteran.

The fourth generation of this important Hancock County Randolph Family currently has members serving in the armed forces.

It's not for everybody

There are moments from my high school experience that I would rather forget, but those moments are mostly overshadowed by how much I enjoyed attended classes and learning.

Now my college days, minus the required biology and math classes, were most memorable.

As an English major and history minor, I had the option of exploring all the literature and specific eras of history I wanted.

One of my favorite classes was Shakespeare class. I love the plays, the language, and the fact that not every single one of his plays ended with some fairy tale happy outcome. We even got to act out some of the plays during class.

I also took a Cuban literature class, African-American literature class, a class on the works of J.R.R. Tolkien, and Greek mythology (another favorite), to name a few.

And of course, being a student at Ole Miss, I was exposed to the many works of William Faulkner. My favorite story is "A Rose for Emily."

One of my favorite eras of history is the Renaissance and learning anything about Henry VIII.

I even took a film class, which mostly focused on film noirs.

My point is, if I could make a living as a full-time student, I most certainly would jump at the chance.

However, there are many out there who aren't like me. They don't share the same love of school as I do.

And you know what? That's perfectly okay.

Not everyone is made for college or graduate school. We are all meant to do different things with our lives. It's all about finding what we are good at. We are not all meant to be doctors, lawyers, and scientists.

Students are often encouraged to go to college.

However, if that person is not good at or doesn't enjoy school, then what is the point of becoming riddled with years of student debt for a degree that they won't use in the real world?

On Monday, I met 19-year-old Taylor Rabelais who is making a decision that is right for her, joining AmeriCorps for ten months. Not only will she be learning valuable skills, she will also learn what it is likes to help others during times of disaster.

At the end, the program will award funding to a trade school or educational facility of her choosing.

She told me that she knew college wasn't something that she wanted to do.

It made me proud to hear that. I often hear of students going straight to college right after school and then regretting that decision.

In my case, I often wished I had started at a junior college first. That first year at a major university was a rough one, to say the least.

I think it's beneficial to encourage our young people to attend trade schools and/or take vocational classes during high school.

There is nothing shameful about earning an honest wage, whether it be as a mechanic, laborer, construction worker, doctor, writer, teacher, or lawyer, etc.

We all have different talents and our own unique ways of contributing to society, which I think is important to embrace and encourage.

Drinking and Boating Don't Mix

As the temperatures increase, so does our appetite to be on the water. I would like to discuss awareness about boating safety and decrease the number of boating accidents.

Alcohol use has long been associated with boating.

Enjoying Mississippi's many waters is a great way to relax. With the usage of alcohol, the combined effects of sun, wind, waves, and boat motion tend to sneak up on you. Boaters become less aware of potentially serious boating problems such as speed, other boaters, wakes, and threatening changes in the weather. Judgment is seriously affected. Don't overdo your boating fun. In 3 hours of normal boating, the noise, motion, sun, wind, and glare can frequently double an individual's reaction time.

Studies indicate that these combined conditions affect a boater's

Conservation Corner

by James L. Cummins

reflexes, coordination, and overall awareness. A boat operator is likely to become impaired more quickly than a driver, drink for drink. A past study of boating fatalities in California, Maryland, New Jersey, and North Carolina showed that 51 percent of the fatalities had a blood alcohol content of 0.04 percent or greater. Alcohol contents of 0.1 percent were found in 31 percent of the fatalities. Peripheral vision, color and depth perception, and ability to focus suffer. To alleviate this problem, have a designated driver. Keep alcohol consumption at a minimal or moderate level. Don't drink and drive a boat (or automobile). Remember, as the driver, you are also responsible for the conduct of your guests. Moderation and common sense should dictate how much alcohol is consumed on your boat. The best policy is to wait until you're anchored for the day before enjoying alcoholic beverages aboard.

In addition to drinking and boating, the wearing of life jackets is another concern.

Over 80 percent of boating fatalities involve people not wearing life jackets. Tragically, they had life jackets on board but were not wearing them. Be sure that you keep the proper number of life jackets readily accessible in your boat and make certain all passengers are wearing one.

Besides being a smart thing to do, it's the law.

The fact remains that very few people wear a life jacket especially when fishing from a boat. Excuses vary, but they are all poor—"I can't cast or paddle with it on," "it is too restrictive," or "it is too hot." Considering the special tailoring available, life jackets can give the boater comfort and protection. The main reason for wearing a life jacket is clear. It is an insurance investment. You are protecting your life. But, correct fit and proper adjustment for the boater wearing it are imperative if the safety margin it offers is to be obtained. Know how to correctly wear a life jacket.

To become familiar with the characteristics of your life jacket, put it on, get in the water and practice swimming. Remember, a life jacket is no substitute for good swimming ability; it is merely an aid to buoyancy.

It's Not Too Late to Start Moving

SENIOR NEWS LINE

BY MATILDA CHARLES

If we've been inactive for many years, it's easy to just assume that there's nothing we can do at our age to increase our health and longevity. Not so, according to a new study.

A large University of Cambridge study of 14,000 participants over nearly 13 years assessed diet, alcohol consumption, body mass index, occupation -- and physical activity levels -- and compared those with mortality risk from any condition.

Here's what researchers discovered: Those who were sedentary and remained sedentary had a higher risk of mortality. However, those who started with low activity levels but increased them had additional longevity benefits. Specifically, the risk of death decreased 24% for a low increase in activity, 38% for a medium increase, and 42% for a high increase in activity. In other words, even if we've been very sedentary, becoming more active now lowers our mortality risk.

Many researchers (and the World Health Organization) still say that 150 minutes per week of moderate-intensity exercise is what we all need. They even break it down into minutes of activities like dog walking or gardening, all the way up to running and playing tennis.

But that doesn't mean we should all do 150 minutes of cycling or jogging per week, especially without medical advice. Yes, we can gain longevity if we become more active, but it shouldn't be at the risk of our current health.

Get your doctor's opinion. Ask for a plan to gradually increase your activity level. How many minutes of which activity should you do each week? If you're going to walk, where will you do that? If you want at-home exercise equipment, what kind? If your doctor's office has a sports medicine department, ask about being assessed on its equipment.

Seriously consider upping your activity level, but do it safely.

Staying Safe Online

It's getting more and more difficult to stay safe on our phones, computers ... everything that involves communication that someone else can access.

If your local senior center holds classes, recommend that it conduct one on how to recognize scams in your email and on websites. Scammers are getting more sophisticated as they try to lure you in, making you feel that it's safe to click a link or give information. Once you learn how to identify (or at least be suspicious of) what you see online, you increase your safety because you know to stop and think.

Realize that phone apps are likely not very safe, especially for things like your bank, grocery store and buying things online.

I don't often suggest brand names in this column, but in a few cases it's worthwhile to let you know things I've personally ally tried.

If you need work on your computer, consider Geek Squad. They're part of Best Buy (BestBuy.com). If you have a store near you, you can go there to sign up and also leave your device for repair. Call ahead.

In many cases, depending on the problem, you don't have to take in your device. If you call Geek Squad, they can do a remote access. If the problem is something like a bug, in many instances they can fix it from their end while you sit at home and watch the screen. If you contact Geek Squad for any reason, ask if you need to consider getting Webroot (www.webroot.com) anti-virus.

I also can recommend Kim Komando, a woman with a tech website full of information you need (www.komando.com). She also has a weekly radio show.

You can sign up for free weekly email newsletters that are worthwhile, full of safety and how-to information.

Transportation Commission grants benefit Hancock

SEA COAST ECHO

The Mississippi Transportation Commission (MTC) last week announced $10.1 million in funding for intermodal projects throughout the state, including more than a million dollars for projects in Hancock County.

The commission approved the Mississippi Department of Transportation (MDOT) to award grants to regional and municipal airports, ports, railroads and public transit systems throughout Mississippi.

“MDOT’s responsibilities include maintaining and improving the state’s highways and interstates, but also focuses on providing a safe intermodal transportation network for airports, ports and waterways, railroads and public transit,” said Commissioner Tom King, Southern Transportation District. “Each of these modes of transportation play a vital role in transporting people, goods and services that promote economic growth and development throughout Mississippi.”

Funding for these multimodal grants comes from the Multimodal Transportation Improvement Fund. Money from this fund is allocated specifically to support multimodal grants each year. Grant applications, which include project details and funds requested, are reviewed and approved by a multimodal committee specific to each separate mode of transportation.

Eight projects totaling $3.4 million for port improvements were announced. Four projects totaling $1.2 million for railroad improvements were announced.

“Railroads and ports provide safe and efficient movement of goods and services,” said Commissioner Mike Tagert, Northern Transportation District. “These investments will enhance freight traffic and capacity.”

Twenty-three projects totaling $3.6 million for aeronautic improvements were announced.

“Local airports are vital to the economy of a rural state like Mississippi,” said Commissioner Dick Hall, Central Transportation District. “MDOT recognizes the importance making needed improvements that will continue to support local economic growth and development.”

Twenty-two projects totaling $1.9 million for public transit improvements were announced.

“Public transit is vital for many Mississippians,” King said. “These funds will improve public transit systems to help provide mobility options for all Mississippians.”

Eight ports received funding:

Yellow Creek State Port Authority, $400,000 - operations facility and rail yard.

Port of Rosedale, $471,396 - road repair and improvement.

Port of Pascagoula, $480,000 - improvements at South Terminal.

Pearl River unveils 'game changer' with new turf project

SEA COAST ECHO

Historic Dobie Holden Stadium will look considerably different when Pearl River fans fill its seats in 2019. In coordination with GeoSurfaces, PRCC recently completed the installation of a new turf project that coaches and school administrators agree will be a difference maker for the Wildcats and surrounding communities.

"Our entire department will reap the benefits from this state-of-the-art surface. It will impact our practice sessions, game day atmosphere, and off-season camps and workouts for all of our programs," Pearl River Athletics Director Jeff Long said. "Once again, our administration continues to place a priority on the student-athlete experience. I want to thank Dr. Adam Breerwood, VP of business Roger Knight, and the Board of Trustees for providing us with the resources to provide this game-changing facility upgrade."

The field is the latest upgrade at Dobie Holden Stadium, following last summer's video board project. Fans will immediately know they're at Pearl River once they enter the stadium, as both end zones are boldly maroon and gold, with one marked by "PEARL RIVER" and the other "WILDCATS." The iconic Wildcat logo is also stitched into the 50-yard line, bridging the hashmarks at midfield.

"I love it. This is going to make a huge difference. It's a game changer when it comes to recruiting," said Pearl River football coach Ted Egger, who's set to begin his third season at the helm of the Wildcat program. "This is huge for us as a football program and as a whole athletic department.

"This is as good as it gets. It's awesome. What I love about this is it shows when we commit to doing something, we do it the right way and we're all in. I'm thankful to be at a place that understands that. Our administration as a whole has been great."

One big benefit to the new surface is the fact that rain or shine, the Wildcats won't have to gameplan around Mother Nature.

"With the turf, we won't have to worry about the field conditions — it will never be too muddy," Egger said. "That will make a huge difference. Our guys won't have to be out lining the field anymore."

The same goes for other programs as the football Wildcats won't be the only ones reaping the rewards of the new project. Soccer lines were stitched into the surface to ensure Coach Henrik Madsen and Drew Gallant's squads won't miss a kickoff or practice. Additionally, the field will be utilized for other school and yet-to-be-announced community functions.

"I am thrilled to see this plan come to fruition," Pearl River President Dr. Adam Breerwood said. "With the close proximity of the new residence halls, we believe this upgrade will provide our College opportunities in a variety of areas. I believe we are now equipped to expand our summer camps, our student activities program and community outreach initiatives. Our intention is to build Pearl River Community College into the one of the nation's very best."

"We want our current and future students to create positive life long memories during their time on our campus. I am grateful to the PRCC Board of Trustees for their commitment to our students."

The new multipurpose surface measures 390 feet long by 225 feet wide.

"GeoSurfaces is pleased to announce that they have just completed the new installation of IronTurf at Pearl River Community College's Dobie Holden Stadium," GeoSurfaces Director of Marketing Katherine Perry said. "IronTurf is a unique blend of interlocked fibers that creates a surface that stands up to the nation's toughest sports.

"Since its introduction in 2017, IRONTURF is quickly becoming the turf of choice for the country's most demanding sports venues, with recent installations at the Empower Field House, home to the five-time Super Bowl champions, the New England Patriots."

UPCOMING SCHEDULE

Pearl River will host its annual Meet the Wildcats fall event at Dobie Holden Stadium on Aug. 22 before the Gridiron Wildcats hit the road Aug. 29 to open the 2019 season at Itawamba.

Following another road game at East Mississippi on Sept. 5, the Wildcats will showcase its new field Sept. 12 when Copiah-Lincoln visits Poplarville.

Once again, all of PRCC's games will be streamed at PRCCAthletics.com and broadcast on WRJW Radio.

Anyone interested in buying season tickets or purchasing a sponsorship package this season can call the PRCC Athletics Department at (601) 403-1179.

Father and Son, Fishing Fun

Our last Cat Island Trip was simply amazing. Yes we caught fish, and yes the weather was nice, but sometimes there is just a little more to it. This trip was made up five father and sons.

Actually four of the dads were on the very first Cat Island overnight trip we ever ran (8 years ago)!!! We had a great time on our 2011 trip, but this trip blew that one away.

We "kidnaped" Nathan Guice's teenage son Tyler, to assist us on the trip. He helped with the heavy lifting, fish cleaning, and even a little fish catching.

On one of the supply runs, Tyler and I caught 3 nice/tasty triple tails. His younger brother Deacon was along with 4 other 10-12 year olds, and their dads.

The fishing was absolutely incredible. These youngsters got to do battle with big trout, red-fish, flounder, sharks and big jack crevalle.

They were highlights that most definitely stood out. Watching young Jules Davis fight and beat a big jack crevalle was intense. Having Nathan get an "inshore slam" (speck, red, flounder) in the last few minutes of the last morning was very cool.

The trout slaying that Romero and Temple crew did on the first morning, on Capt Matt's Boat was

by Capt. Sonny Schindler absolutely impressive.

Keep in mind, all of these families are from southern Louisiana, so they know what a treat this was. Many of the trout these guys caught, were well over 20 inches long!

They couldn't believe that fishing like this even existed outta Mississippi?

It was about as perfect of a fishing trip as we could have wanted. The Dads got to catch fish, and catch up with each other. Most of these gentlemen went to College at Millsaps, a "few" years ago.

The kiddos got to experience 3 days on an island, basically all to themselves. Of course, and best of all, were the memories made. The fishing, the boats, the food, the wildlife are what makes these trips.

The smelly clothes, and the sunburns will eventually disappear, but these memories will last forever. We wanna thank these dads for bringing these young men fishing with us, it was awesome!!!

As always, have fun and be safe.

Results delivered for District 46:

Strong public schools are the backbone of our community and as your State Senator, I have always fought for our great Coast schools and teachers. Education is not just another political issue to me, my family has over 200 years of combined experience working for our public schools; it runs deep in my veins and affects my family directly.

Everything that I have published and presented during my campaign is factual and documented and will continue to be so.

I would like to clarify any and all misinterpretation for my voting record on education bills for 2019 legislative session.

Senate Bill 2770 (TEACHER PAY RAISE)- The reason that I voted AGAINST this amendment was because it was not a YES or NO vote on the pay raise itself. It was an amendment to table the bill and send it back to the house. The vote occurred late on Thursday afternoon March 28, 2019, before we finished the session on Friday morning. If this amendment had passed on the afternoon before we adjourned our session in all reality the bill would have died. The House had already finished with their work for the year. Consequently, if this amendment had passed our teachers would NOT have received a pay raise for the 2019 school year.

Senate Bill 2675 (ESA PROGRAM)- The reason I voted YES was simply to extend the repealer of a bill that has been in place since 2015. This bill allows 400 special needs students the opportunity to receive an educational experience at a different school that is better equipped to meet their needs.

Senate Bill 2001 (LOTTERY BILL)- When the Governor calls a special session, he will in turn use a legislator's bill with his additional inputs. The Governor chose to utilize the first 80 million in revenue of the Lottery Bill for roads, bridges, and infrastructure. Anything beyond 80 million within a fiscal year goes towards Education. When the Governor makes this call and this bill is placed on your desk, it is a simple yes or no vote. There is NO changing the bill.

House Bill 957- It has been said that I refused to vote on this bill. The truth of the matter is that I was out sick that day. The records at the capital will show this information. This particular bill was amended to be tabled and sent back to the House. The bill passed 27-21 in the Senate and was tabled. It was sent to the House and died.

I have delivered for Coast schools and families in other ways including securing funding for the new job training center at PRCC and expanding the Sales Tax Holiday to include school supplies.

As everyone knows my entire campaign and political career has been based on positive actions. I see no need to go negative and I will try to help people to the best of my ability as I have always done.

I humbly ask for your continued support and vote on August 6th.

We invite the Community Groups on the Gulf Coast as well as interested medical personnel to participate in improving the issues impacting poor birth outcomes. These include psycho-social issues such as prenatal care adequacy, maternal use of illegal substances, domestic violence, tobacco use, poverty, infant safety, transportation, birth spacing, family planning, education, employment, obesity, breast feeding, unsafe sleep practices, child abuse & neglect, sexually transmitted diseases, mental health support and the

Volunteers keep marine areas clean, protect environment

MSU EXTENSION SERVICE

The Mississippi State University Coastal Cleanup Program hosted its third annual Star-Spangled Cleanup event following Fourth of July activities, where over 100 volunteers participated in picking up trash from local beaches on the Mississippi Gulf Coast. On Sept. 21, the Pearl Riverkeeper nonprofit organization, along with its many partners, will host its third annual Pearl River Clean Sweep. Volunteers will descend on stretches of the Pearl River from the headwaters in Nanih Waiya, Mississippi, all the way to Louisiana to help remove thousands of pounds of trash. In 2017 and 2018, more than 1,700 citizens volunteered their time to remove more than 67,000 pounds of trash from the Pearl River Watershed. Not long after the Pearl River event, the MSU

Coastal Cleanup Program will host its largest annual event of the year, the Mississippi Coastal Cleanup, on Oct. 19. The 2018 event drew 2,649 volunteers, who cleaned up 26,758 pounds of trash. These events have important commonalities: They are volunteer driven, bring community awareness to local environmental concerns, get volunteers active outdoors and bring value to their local economies through volunteer hours and tourism by keeping communities clean and safe. Wind and water carry pollution like trash, sediment, fertilizers, oil and gasoline, animal waste, heavy metals, pesticides, herbicides, and detergents from our parking lots, roads, farm fields, lawns, or construction sites (amongst many other sources) right into the more natural spaces and waterbodies we depend on for many other services. Because water cycles around the globe, cleaning up local water pollution can have a global impact. Natural spaces like prairies, forests and wetlands naturally remove air, water and soil pollutants, not to mention provide habitat for animals. When it comes to local environmental concerns, volunteerism and civic engagement are crucial elements of success. Research links volunteer activity in general to improved physical and mental health in middle-aged and older adults. Environmental volunteerism was specifically linked to improved physical activity, self-reported health and reduced odds for depressive symptoms. Youth participation in cleanup events also provides opportunities to learn about the environment, local governance and civic duty, as well as a chance to get some exercise while supporting their community. Getting outdoors can foster social interaction and a sense of community, while participation in environmental stewardship offers an opportunity for improving the world and leaving a legacy for future generations. Cleanup events like these also promote civic engagement in our local communities and can provide awareness about local environmental issues.

There are plenty of ways we can help protect the environment while getting outside. Pick up litter in your community. Have a stream cleanup. Work with your neighbors to reduce runoff from lawns to prevent algal blooms in neighborhood ponds. Plant roadside buffers for beautification and pollinator habitat. For more information about water conservation, contact Beth Baker with the Research and Education to Advance Conservation and Habitat program at MSU at 662-325-7491 or beth.baker@msstate.edu.

Fourth Sunday at Four this Sunday

SEA COAST ECHO

Fourth Sunday at Four is scheduled for July 27 at Christ Episcopal Church, located at 912 S. Beach Blvd., Bay St. Louis. Music begins at 4 p.m. with art and reception at 5 p.m. The event is open and free to the public.

4 P.M. – PERFORMING ARTIST

Jessica was born and raised in New Orleans, LA. She spent three and a half years living and studying in New York City. There she earned a masters degree in musical theatre from New York University. Ever since seeing The Wizard of Oz at an incredibly young age, she has been obsessed with movies, musicals, composers, scripts, libretti, lyrics and melodies. Deana started performing in high school and continued while attending Tulane University where she completed a BFA in musical theatre. Her final year at Tulane was magnificently botched when a hurricane named Katrina hit her hometown and the Gulf Coast, where she learned much from that event and is still understanding and learning from its ongoing effects. Deana has had an unbelievable time performing such roles as Hope Langdon in Something’s Afoot (NYU) and Liz Imbrie in High Society (Summer Lyric Theatre). The premiere accompanist of the Mississippi Gulf Coast, Guy Bowering, Jr., is a native of Gulfport, Mississippi and has grown up around music. He first studied with Martha

Francis Houston, continuing with Margaret Shaw, and completed pre-college studies in Jackson with Annette Joe. On the college level, Guy studied with Joel Harrison at Mississippi State and then with Mary Ann Stringer at the University of Southern Mississippi. It was at USM where Guy discovered a real love for accompanying, and began accompanying for various choral groups as well as operas, musical theaters, and numerous vocal and instrumental applied lessons. After graduating from

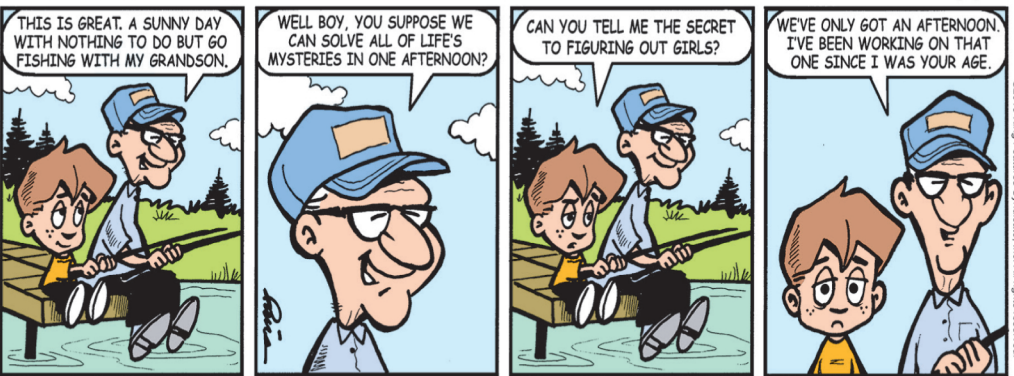

USM with a degree in Music Industry, he moved back to the Gulf Coast where he maintains an active accompanying schedule between the Gulf Coast Messiah Chorus, Long Beach High School, and St. Peter’s by-the-Sea Episcopal Church. Mr. Bowering has accompanied for the Opera East Texas, Gulf Coast Opera Theater and Gulfport Little Theater. Guy is the accompanist for Jessica Nicole Gordon. Guy is currently the organist/choirmaster at Church of the Redeemer, Biloxi. He considers himself tremendously blessed to live and work in such a wonderful community. Mr. Bowering is working JT Anglin on forming a Liturgical Opera Company here on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Fill the Bus School Supply Drive continues through July 31

SEA COAST ECHO

United Way of South Mississippi is asking residents of Hancock, Harrison, Pearl River and Stone counties to help "Fill the Bus."

The annual school supply drive is in full swing, and supplies can be donated through donation boxes at Walmart Supercenters in Biloxi, D'Iberville, Gulfport, Pass Christian, Picayune, Waveland and Wiggins.

Needed items range from pencils, crayons and notebooks to boxes of facial tissue and hand sanitizer. A complete list of requested items is attached to each donation box.

The drive continues through July 31. On July 26, volunteers will begin moving items to buses for distribution to local school districts. Schools will then distribute supplies to needy children and families.

Last year, the drive generated more than 14,000 school supplies, and the need continues to be great, said Kathy Springer, UWSM CEO.

"Fill the Bus supports children in our communities by giving them the tools and the confidence they need to succeed in the classroom," she said. "There is a great need for school supplies, and we know the community will step up and support the drive."

For more information or to volunteer on July 26, contact Kellee Caldwell, UWSM director of volunteers and special projects, at kcaldwell@unitedwaysm.org or by phone at (228) 896-2213.

scapes in graphite pencil has become his passion. Bobby's style of art is realism to say the least. He finds great joy in all the little details and loves to wow the viewer. Next to his love for realism is his fixation on black and white.

He is blown away by how you can create an image just by changing the values. Bobby finds black and white calming and in this in your face world, he thinks we all could use a little calmness. The third element of his style is nature of course.

His hope is that the time he spends exploring the great outdoors and composing the images will be felt by the viewer.

To know that his work touches them the way it touches him is the greatest achievement. His methods of producing such realistic pieces are a bit unconventional.

He starts by drawing on a primed board instead of paper.

A combination of graphite powder and pencils along with a long list of tools including assorted erasers, brushes, and even razor blades are used to add, move and remove the medium until the piece is complete. Archival varnish is then applied to protect the drawing eliminating the need for glass and allowing the warmth of the pieces to show through directly to the viewer.

Pastel Artist Deana Goldsmith lives in the Red Creek Wildlife management area in Perkinston Mississippi with her Artist husband and two creative boys.

She's had a passion for art all her life particularly drawing. Throughout the years she has delved into all types of mediums and always gravitated back to her first love "Drawing".

The general theme of her artwork is wildlife and pencil is the perfect medium for portraying her subjects as accurately as possible.

GET READY FOR THE FIRST BELL

It's school time again! You're probably feeling excited and maybe a little sad that summer is over. Some kids feel nervous or a little scared on the first day of school because of all the new things: new teachers, new friends, and maybe even a new school. Luckily, these "new" worries only stick around for a little while. Let's find out more about going back to school.

The First Day

Most teachers kick off the school year by introducing themselves and talking about all the stuff you'll be doing that year. Some teachers give students a chance to tell something about themselves to the rest of the class.

When teachers do the talking on the first day, they often go over classroom rules so you'll know what's allowed and what's not. Pay close attention so you'll know if you need to raise your hand to ask a question and what the rules are about visiting the restroom.

You might already know a lot of kids in your classes on the first day. But it's a great day to make a new friend, so try to say hello to kids you know and new ones that you don't. Make the first move and you'll be glad you did and so will your new friend!

Moving to Middle School?

Sixth grade often signals a move to middle school or junior high, where you'll find lockers and maybe a homeroom. This is just what it sounds like — a classroom you'll go to each morning, kind of like your home in the school. In middle school, you might move from classroom to classroom for each subject. Your teachers know that this is a big change from elementary school and will help you adjust.

Most teachers let you pick your own seat on the first day, but by the second or third morning, they'll have mapped out a seating plan. At first, it's a good idea to write down where your seat is in your notebook so you don't forget.

Feeling Good on Day One

Seeing friends you haven't seen in a while can make the first day a good one. You also can make the day feel special by wearing an outfit you like. Maybe you got a great T-shirt on vacation, or your new sneakers put a spring in your step. If you wear a uniform, you might wear a favorite watch, a new hair band or a piece of jewelry to show your style.

It can make you feel good to be prepared and have all the supplies you need. Some schools distribute supply lists before the year begins, so you can come stocked up on pencils, folders and whatever else you'll need. Once you've covered the basics, you might tuck an extra few dollars in your backpack for an emergency (like forgetting your lunch money). Or maybe you'd like to bring along a book or magazine to read while you're on the bus.

Whatever you put in your backpack, make sure you pack it the night before. This prevents the morning panic when you can't find your homework or lunch box. Speaking of lunch, that's something else that can help you feel good at school — whether it's the first day or the 100th day. Help your parents pack it the night before if you don't like what's on the menu at the cafeteria. Try to include a variety of foods in your packed lunch, especially fruits and vegetables.

Get Oriented

The first day of school is your first chance to find your way around a new school, or learn the pathways to new classes in your old school. It's a lot to learn in one day, so don't be surprised if you need a reminder or two.

It might help to write a few notes to yourself, so you'll remember the important stuff, like your locker combination and that lunch starts at 11:43, not 12:10. Before you know it, your fingers will fly as you open your locker and you won't have to check your notes to know what time lunch starts!

A Bad Start?

What if you hate school by the end of day one? Teachers recommend giving things some time to sort themselves out — once you know your way around the building and get adjusted to the new routine, you'll probably feel better. If those feelings don't fade, talk to your mom, dad, teacher, or school counselor.

- Here are a few final tips for a fantastic school year:
- Get enough sleep.
 - Eat a healthy breakfast.
 - Try your best.
 - Use good work habits, like writing down your assignments and turning in your homework on time.
 - Take your time with school work. If you don't understand something, ask the teacher.
 - Keep a sense of humor. One teacher we know shows his new students a picture of himself graduating high school — a grinning ape in a red graduation cap and gown. This usually makes the kids laugh, and it's a good way to remind them that school is fun.

SCREEN TIME GUIDELINES

for teens

As kids get older, too much screen time can interfere with activities like being physically active, doing homework, playing with friends, and spending time with family.

Too much screen time also can contribute to obesity, attention problems, sleep disorders, and problems at school.

For teens, screen time can include things like researching a school project, creating music or art, or interacting with friends via social media.

But it also can include less productive activities, like watching inappropriate TV shows, visiting unsafe websites, or playing violent video games.

Some studies show that teens spend almost nine hours a day online, on the phone, watching TV or playing games — so what's a parent to do?

Parents should continue to set limits on screen time, preview all shows and games to make sure they're OK, and stay aware of what their teens are doing online.

How Much Is Too Much?

The American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) recommends that parents of kids and teens 5 to 18 years old place consistent limits on the use of any media. This includes entertainment media (like watching TV and movies), as well as educational media (like creating flash cards on a smartphone app).

Not all screen time is created equal. It's up to parents to decide how (and how often) their teens use screens and whether screen time is positive or negative. For instance, time spent on homework or other educational activities might not need to be as restricted as time spent playing video games.

For teens (and kids of all ages), screen time should not replace time needed for sleeping, eating, being active, studying, and interacting with family and friends.

Screen Time Tips

The same parenting rules apply to screen time as to anything else — set a good example, establish limits, and talk with your teen about it.

To make your teen's screen time more productive:

- Research video and computer games before letting your teen get them. Look at the ratings, which can run from EC (meaning "early childhood") to AO (meaning "adults only"). Teens probably should be limited to games rated T (for "teens") or younger.
- Preview games and even play them with your teen to see what they're like. The game's rating may not match what you feel is appropriate.
- Make sure teens have a variety of free-time activities, like spending time with friends and playing sports, which can help them develop a healthy body and mind.

- Turn off all screens during family meals and at bedtime. Also, keep devices with screens out of your teen's bedroom after bedtime, and don't allow a TV in your teen's bedroom.
- Treat screen time as a privilege that teens need to earn, not a right that they're entitled to. Tell them that screen time is allowed only after chores and homework are done.
- Spend screen time together to make sure that what your teen sees is appropriate. Watch TV, play games, go online — use screen time together as a chance to interact and communicate.
- Use screening tools on the TV, computers, and tablets to block your teen's access to inappropriate material.
- Teach your teen about Internet safety and social media smarts, and make sure he or she knows the dangers of sharing private information online or sexting.
- Keep the computer in a common area where you can watch what's going on.

Results Delivered for The Coast: School Supply Sales Tax Holiday

I know what it is like to live on a budget, and I know there are many hard-working families in this district who must carefully manage their household expenses. That is why I fought so hard and co-authored legislation, SB2955, to expand the sales tax-free weekend to include school supplies. We already had a tax holiday for other items, but I believed it was essential to make sure our families could afford to properly equip their children to learn.

So this weekend, Friday July 26th and Saturday, July 27th please take advantage of the sales-tax free weekend to stock up on school supplies and please remember to vote Philip Moran in the Republican Primary, August 6th.
